Project Proposal Content Guidance

- The project statement is the most important component of the Fulbright application. Scholars with the most compelling, theoretically sound, well-written, feasible proposals are generally recommended for awards. Sometimes those with outstanding professional achievements assume that a brief, general project statement will be sufficient; it is not. To ensure a competitive application, your proposed project, as well as the strategy for completing it, should be thoroughly explained in three to five pages.
- Do not exceed the word limit of the proposal. Including irrelevant or extraneous material may divert attention from the project statement.
- Begin the project statement with your name, country and the project title at the top of page one. At the top of each subsequent page, type your name and country.

General Guidelines

- Length of proposal: no less than 2000 words and no more than 2500 words. Please do not exceed 5 pages.
- Font: Times New Roman 12; space between lines: 1.15; use tab to indicate a new paragraph.
- Keep your proposal clear and straightforward so that an educated reader from a related discipline can understand it.

Organize your proposal in order of the following points, which appear in bold print, and use them as headings for sections of text in your statement:

Background: Introduce the research topic. Place the project in academic or professional context by referring to major works by others on the subject.

Objectives: Clearly define the aims of the project.

Methodology: Describe the project. Explain the approach, methods and plan you will use (for example, interviews, library or archival research, or laboratory experiments). Indicate whether the proposed research is quantitative or qualitative.

Significance: Explain the importance of the project for the field, your home country and your own professional development. Indicate what effect you expect the opportunity to have on your teaching or professional work in your home country. (For example: new approaches to curriculum planning, student advising or pedagogy; expanding knowledge in the field through collaboration with U.S. colleagues). Describe briefly the expected impact of your participation on your home institution, community or professional field.

Evaluation and Dissemination: Describe plans for assessment and distribution of research results in your home country and elsewhere.

Justification for Residence in the United States for the Proposed Project: Indicate why it is necessary to conduct the research onsite in the United States.

Duration: Explain how the project can be completed within the proposed time-period. Please refer only to one year, it is understood that most projects may take longer.

Other: If applicable, indicate the quantity, format and transportation requirements for any botanical, zoological or mineral samples that you will need to bring to the United States for analysis.

Additional Guidance

In addition to following the format carefully, the following advice has been passed on from former Fulbright Scholars and review committees that may assist you in preparing a more competitive and ultimately successful Fulbright application.

- Submit a clear and complete project statement that introduces you professionally to your colleagues in the United States. The best applications are those that reflect the applicant's purpose and intent.
- Make sure that your qualifications and expertise match the objectives in your project statement. You should be able to show that you are qualified to accomplish what you are proposing to do.
- Emphasize how your project will benefit the host institution or other scholars in your field both in your country and in the United States. Address in your project statement the ways in which you will use the experience upon your return. What is the likely impact of your experience abroad? How will you use what you learned upon your return, professionally and personally?
- Connect your past experience to what you are preparing to do if you receive an award. Explain the project's significance and its importance to the field. Focus on what can be reasonably accomplished during the period of the grant.

- Do not assume that your suitability for the project is self-evident. Your standing in your field may not be well known to reviewers. You need to make a case for yourself based on your past experience and current scholarly endeavors. Explain the significance of your project in language that will be understood by reviewers from outside your field.
- Do not stress only how a Fulbright grant will benefit you or your career. Remember that the program is intended to foster mutual understanding between cultures and nations.
- Be specific in describing your previous work and in laying out the nature of your proposed Fulbright activity. A frequent failing in applications is that the proposal is underdeveloped or too imprecise to give reviewers a clear sense of the endeavor.
- Express what you can bring to the program clearly and succinctly. Think of the basic questions that need to be answered: Why should I apply for a Fulbright award to come to the United States? If selected, what will I do and how will I do it? What preparations have I made to complete the project? What can I contribute to the Fulbright Program? What will the results of my participation be? Include only the most pertinent information in forming your responses so as not to exceed the page restrictions. At the same time, you should avoid writing a proposal so brief that it will be difficult for the reviewer to understand the project.
- Emphasize key points in the first paragraph of the proposal. Reviewers examine many Fulbright applications, and having to search for the main points of the proposed activity is not helpful. You should use the rest of the proposal to support your statements in the opening paragraphs.
- Pay attention to style in your proposal. You may want to use the first person, but you should avoid flooding your proposal with “I’s” or referring to yourself in the third person.

Recommendations

Use this section to register your recommenders.

- According to U.S. academic institutions asking immediate family members (spouse/partner/siblings/parents and the like) letter of recommendation has an angle of partiality.
- You must submit three letters of reference. Do not submit more than three references. When you register and enter details of your referees, they will each be sent instructions via email by the system for how to submit their online reference for you. However, the email they receive will not indicate the deadline for submitting their reference letter. Inform your referees that they are expected to submit their Letters of Reference by the deadline date.
- All references should be written in English and typed on institutional letterhead and signed.
- One reference must be written by your doctoral advisor.
- Please Mention clearly who your advisor is by writing: “PhD Advisor” in the relationship status.
- If you have 2 doctoral advisors, you can use only of them as recommender.
- Once you register your recommenders, they will receive an automatic email with instructions on completing the online recommendation form. The message may be caught by spam/junk email filters, so please inform your referees that they should look for their email a few minutes after you register their details.
- You can track the status of recommendations, send reminders, and add/delete recommenders through this system before and after submission of your application.
- You will be sent an email notification when each of your referees submits their reference.
